HAYES SCHOOL COUNSELING CONNECTION | APRIL 2020

Hello from your Hayes School Counseling team, Mrs. Thompson and Ms. Brown! We have missed seeing the smiling faces of the Hayes community. Although we may not be available for face to face interaction, we are still available to support you. Email us at tammy.thompson@cobbk12.org and laronda.brown@cobbk12.org.

It is natural to feel a mix of emotions from being overwhelmed to anxious to frustrated during this time. We want to take this opportunity to focus on the emotions of joy and hope. This newsletter includes information that will, hopefully, make you smile and engage in fun family activities.

Congratulations Lt. Dan!

Cadbury, the company behind the popular egg-shaped chocolate, has named its next mascot -- and it's not a bunny.

The candy company announced Tuesday that after holding nationwide tryouts, two-legged hound Lieutenant Dan has won the title of Cadbury Bunny. Lt. Dan, who sports a pair of pink bunny ears, "has overcome adversity, (and) has won the hearts of America," Cadbury said in its news release.

The rescue pup, who was born with a deformity in his hind paws and tail that led to their eventual amputation, fetched the most amount of votes.

Got extra toilet paper rolls?

Visit DLTK's Crafts for Kids at https://www.dltk-kids.com/type/tp_roll.htm for toilet paper roll crafts. Ideas range from angels to zebra. A quick craft idea is to create binoculars. All that is required is two toilet paper rolls and glue or tape to attach the rolls together side by side to form binoculars. Use your choice of materials to decorate the binoculars. An optional add-on for this activity is to attach ribbon or string to wear the binoculars. Once you are done, go on a scavenger hunt around the house or in the yard to discover what is in your world.

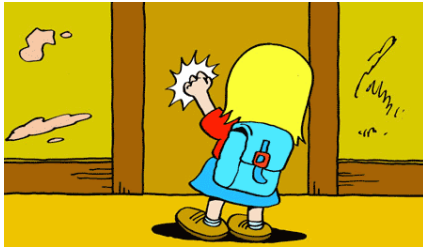

Cook up some fun in the kitchen.
